

Students serve in technology coordination effort

by Dennis J. Neumann

If you're like most of us, you get a little confused about where to click or what keys to punch when trouble pops on the computer screen. Most of the time a frustrating situation for us is "a piece of cake" for those gifted folks who thrive on challenges with the new computer technology.

Now a small number of UTTC students are involved as troubleshooters and technicians, and beginning to play a key role in a larger effort to coordinate the college's online and technology needs.

Students from the Computer Support Technology Program entered the school's technology labor pool early in the fall term following a series of meetings designed to foster coordination between departments that provide technology services or teach technology skills.

"Before, we had pods of technology around campus," said Douglas J. Quinn, Information Technology Department Webmaster. "Now there's a coordinated effort."

Working on the effort are three departments that maintain and support the college's expanding information and technology system. The Information Technology Department (I-T) maintains much or most of the computer hardware

Park to help snow removal

by Warren "Red" Koch

The maintenance department needs your help when it snows. It's more difficult to remove snow when cars and trucks are in the way. Please follow these guidelines for helping to keep your vehicle out of the way. Thanks for helping!

- Streets and roads are cleaned first; avoid parking on them until they're clean
- Driveways and parking lots cleaned later; park on cleaned streets until lots are clear
- Note to housing students - please unhook outside water hoses to avoid water damage

Snow shoveling is hard work - do it right

By Sharlene Gjermundson

Clearing snow and ice from driveways and sidewalks is hard work. To prevent injuries, follow these safety tips from the National Safety Council, and the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons:

- ◆ Dress warmly, paying special attention to feet, hands, nose and ears.

- ◆ Avoid shoveling snow if you are out of shape. If you have heart problems, check with your doctor first.

- ◆ Do light warm-up exercises before shoveling and take breaks.

- ◆ Push snow in front of you. If you have to lift it, pick up small amounts and lift with your legs, not your back. Don't twist your body. Do not throw snow over your shoulder or to the side.

- ◆ Use rock salt or de-icing compounds to remove ice from steps, walkways and sidewalks. Sand placed on walkways may also help prevent slipping.

- ◆ If you are using a snow blower, read the manufacturer's manual before starting. Make sure you understand all the recommended safety steps

Tribal Culture on display for tourism conference

by Karen Paetz

The Tribal Tourism Partnership Initiative along with the UTTC Cultural Committee presented and performed for the Rocky Mountain Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators Annual Conference, held on October 13, 2002 at the Radisson in Bismarck. This conference includes the following states: Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming. Conference participants were representative of those areas with over 250 registered to attend this year's conference. Each year the conference is held in one of the states, so therefore North Dakota hosts this event once every 8 years.

It was through a "team" effort with the UTTC Cultural Committee, Art/Art

Marketing, Arrow Graphics, the Standing Rock Vietnam Veterans, Cannonball Singers, vendors and Tribal Tourism; we were able to provide an evening of entertainment as well as an educational presentation. Tribal Tourism students; Caroline High Elk, Jamie Ducheneaux and Tanya Archambault were on hand to field questions and sell Powwow Questions & Answers and Indian Recipes booklets.

The program began with a Welcome by Karen Paetz, Director for the Tribal Tourism Partnership Initiative and introduction of Master of Ceremonies, Phil Baird, UTTC Academic Dean. The Standing Rock Vietnam Veterans and Cannon Ball singers lead Grand Entry. Our Dancers were as follows: Vince Schanadore, men's traditional; Karen Paetz, Julie Cain and Sheena Cain, women's traditional; Kelly Walker & Sonja Cain, Fancy Shawl; Lucy White Eyes, Jingle. Each dance category was featured with song and explanation of dance style, dress and background. The performance concluded with a round dance, with each state being called upon to join in.

Along with the trade show and art displays, UTTC Bernard Strikes Enemy was in charge of setting up a tipi which was flanked with star quilts on each side. This provided the conference participants with a backdrop for group pictures and decor.

The response for the performance was none less than "fabulous", "wonderful" and so on. I wish to take this opportunity to extend a heartfelt thanks to all those participated and made this a huge success.

HIT Corner of Events!

Health Information Department news

by Shawna Zastoupil, RHIT

The highlight event for the HIT students the past week was to attend NDHIMA (North Dakota Health Information Management Association) Fall Work Shop. We were lucky that this workshop was held in Bismarck. It was a wonderful opportunity to meet the local employers of HITs!

Students reported that they were surprised how much information they have absorbed here at UTTC and with their clinicals! NDHIMA was fortunate to obtain speakers that were from one of the largest HIM computer software manufacturers.

We are very proud of the HIM students. They are doing a wonderful job in clinicals, at work shops and in classes. Keep up the great work everyone!

Are you looking for Accreditation Tips? Karla Baxter has a Virtual (audio) Seminar planned for all who wish to attend. The name of the seminar is "Outcomes-Based Accreditation" by American Health Information Management Association.

Please call Karla at Ext. 245 to reserve your spot!

Are You Getting Enough Sleep?

By Sharlene Gjermundson

In a recent national poll, over half of the adults surveyed reported having trouble sleeping at least a few nights per week. Restful nights are a part of the rhythm of life. We sleep at night and wake up in the morning. Whether our lifestyles permit it or not, that is the schedule our bodies are on. Most people need about 7 to 8 hours of sleep, even if they think they can get by on less. Getting a restful night's sleep is almost as important as eating right and exercising.

Restful nights can help us fight disease, feel refreshed during the day, have a positive outlook, concentrate on work and remember things. Without enough sleep, or the right kind of sleep, we can be at risk for depression, poor health, and accidents. If you have trouble sleeping, talking to your doctor may be the best thing you can do to relieve your sleep problem. Talking to your doctor can help you to function better and feel like yourself again. Make an appointment today!

News from the Walking Circle

by Mark L. Mindt

As the winter grips us with its chilly fingers, the participants of the Walking Circle have taken shelter. Aside from walking off-campus at places such as Kirkwood or Gateway Mall or even owning a gym membership, you can use your ½ hour on campus for the UTTC Wellness Initiative. You can find yourself walking in the large gym, skills center, or even through the levels of the Education Building.

With numerous places to walk indoors, the North Dakota weather becomes less of an excuse and more of an incentive to get physically fit. By working with your supervisor, remaining on campus, and being responsible for your safety, you have the freedom to fulfill your goals and physical wellness. So Get Moving!

Center for Student Success holds Open House/ Dance

On August 29, the Center for Student Success welcomed students with an Open House. Refreshments were served to the approximately 80 students and staff that came to visit the new location on the main floor of the Education Building.

A dance on September 26 was sponsored by the Center for Student Success. Computer Support Technology student, Cleatus Shell, spun the discs for the listening enjoyment for the one hundred plus students that came. Students signed in and received a ticket stub for the many door prizes that were given away. Everyone seemed to enjoy the contests that were held throughout the night. The winners were as follows:

$10 Gift Certificates – Tacinca Birrenkott, Codi Blackbird

$15 Gift Certificates – Brandi Hoops, Dennisia Campbell

$25 Gift Certificates – Star Spangled Banner Contest – Bonnie LaFontaine-

Rap Contest – John Pepion

Limbo Contest – Sharissa Sitting Bear
Best Dancer – Frederick Medicine Stone

$50 Gift Certificates – Dean Iyarpeya, Crystal Longie

DVD Player – Frederick Medicine Stone

Don't forget to check out the Haunted House on Halloween day from 2-5 p.m. in the basement of Sitting Bull Hall. A non-perishable food item is required for entry. Monetary donations will be accepted in lieu of a food item. The food items will be delivered on November 21 to local food pantries. A special thanks goes out to the Art/Art Marketing students and staff for all of the creative ideas and work. Also, props to the Construction Technology crew for the great coffin.

Technology

on campus and provides tech support. Computer Support Technology is the academic program that trains students for careers in information technology. And On-Line Education serves the growing number of students and faculty involved in courses delivered on-line.

"Each of the departments has unique needs," said Leah Woodke, Director of Distance and Continuing Education. "But we're working well together on the common goal of providing the best service we can to all of our technology users."

Woodke believes the new level of cooperation is widening the circle of information technology problem solvers on campus, something that wasn't nurtured before.

On another level, it's clear that advances in the school's level of technology contribute to the need for coordination. UTTC took a quantum leap with completion of the new Student Life and Technology Center, named for the late Jack Barden, a respected former UTTC instructor and tribal college leader. The "Barden Center" has become a high performance on-ramp for student access to the information superhighway. It also serves as a state-of-the-art teaching and training center. The school's on-line course offerings, still in the formative stages, have become a major area of emphasis demanding skillful technology services. Added to that are the number of users among the campus staff, who's jobs now rely more heavily on computer information technology than ever.

Within a few weeks of the start of the fall term, UTTC Computer Support Technology students demonstrated their value. Students were instrumental in helping with everything from setting up PC's in the Barden Center, to collecting network information, configuring software, and doing actual wiring.

"We're overjoyed at having them," said Marla Trail, Technician in the Information Technology Department. "They've helped expedite some important projects already."

Every project handled by students allows more time for staff technicians to deal with other projects or work on advancing the college's information technology systems.

"The highest complement I can think of for having the students involved is that most end users haven't noticed any excessive downtime or anything different about the way the information system works," said Bill Reynolds, Director of the Computer Support Technology Program.

The benefit to the student is "priceless," said Reynolds, "The real-world scenarios they're getting into are something that just cannot be duplicated in the lab." The opportunity at UTTC to get a full range of working experiences in computer technology support is better than what students have available to them in other colleges and universities in the area, he said.

In the long-term, students trained in computer support will be the "first responders" for information technology help throughout the entire campus.

"Our goal is to have a fully functioning help-desk run by students up and operating by early in the new year," said Quinn. "We'll be doing some trial runs prior to that. Realistically, it'll be in place for the start of the new school term."

The help-desk will be equipped with several phones and located in a small office in the Barden Center. Students with classroom and lab instruction in tech support will be capable of helping users solve all but the most complex or peculiar problems. In those cases, technicians from the I-T department will be available to assist students or help handle the problems. The service will be open to all computer users on campus not just students.

It's expected the help-desk will be staffed from 40 to 50 hours per week, making it necessary to employ between eight and 12 students. Tech positions will be open to students in UTTC vocations other than the Computer Support Technology Program but they would need to inquire through that program, said Quinn.

When you frantically phone for technology help, these are some of the UTTC students who'll be on the other end of the line. Front row from left, Luann Poitra, Estelle Perry and Kim Iron Hawk. Second row from left, Joseph Mountain, Andrea Condon and Fran Bosh. All of these students helped set up hardware and install software in computers in the Barden Center and Injury Prevention Labs. Estelle and Andrea are employed through work-study and are the nucleus of UTTC's Help Desk.

Cultural Committee to host honoring for Veterans

by Wes Long Feather

A program to honor Veterans tops the list of activities planned by the UTTC Cultural Committee in November, the month designated as Native American Month.

The program "Native Americans Coming Together in Unity to Honor All Veterans," is scheduled for Thursday, November 14 at 4:30 p.m. in the UTTC Cafeteria.

The program includes a prayer from Russell Gillette, flag song by the Cannon Ball Singers, welcome and introductions by Cultural Committee Chair

Julie Cain, guest speakers Louis "Buster" Landreaux and Lavetta "Sissy" Fox (both Veterans), flag honoring presentation led by Cultural Committee Advisor Phil Baird which includes talks by UTTC President David M. Gipp and Dean of Support Services Russell Swagger, introductions of all Veterans and honor song, and a closing song and prayer.

As part of the program a traditional meal will be served. Everyone is invited to attend.

The Culture Committee is comprised of UTTC staff, faculty and students. The group's objectives are to increase awareness of traditional culture and values, to introduce the music, food and storytelling of all tribes, and to encourage wider appreciation for tribal culture on campus and throughout the community.

The images below are American Indian ancestors who helped create the richness in our tribal culture. It's our aim to follow in the spirit of their footsteps and hold the memory of our ancestors close for our guidance and the benefit of our children and grandchildren.

November is National Native American Month

The UTTC Cultural Committee Mission Statement:

We are an organization comprised of staff/faculty and student(s), on the campus of United Tribes Technical College committed to serve and provide the community with diverse and unique cultural enlightenment.

Objectives:

1. To increase the awareness of Native Americans' unique traditional cultural and values.
2. To introduce a variety of genre of education, music, food and storytelling of all tribes.
3. To broaden and encourage a wider audience to listen, learn and appreciate all intertribal cultures within the community of UTTC as well as the Bismarck/Mandan area.

Holding on to the footsteps of our Ancestor:

The following pictures are of our Native American Ancestors who walked on this earth to carve our Heritages and to make the way for our future. Just as we are making the way for our children and grandchildren as Leaders and Great Warriors!

Outstanding Montana students tour campus

by Jesi Silbernagel

The Student and Campus Services Division hosted a campus tour for a group of outstanding native high school students from Montana.

The Talent Search Program is a college preparation program based in north central Montana that helps students who exhibit academic potential. The program helps high school seniors, who have a minimum 3.0 GPA, to obtain the skills necessary to enroll in a secondary education institution

A group representing the communities of Box Elder, Fort Belknap, Havre, and Rocky Boy toured the UTTC campus on October 17th. Later they went on to tour other colleges and universities as far east as Minneapolis.

Vivian Gillette and Jesi Silbernagel led the students on a tour including a description of all programs both on campus and on-line. They seemed particularly interested in UTTC because of the intertribal programs.

As part of the tour, the students ate breakfast at the Jack Barden Student Life Center and heard a talk by Bernard Standing Rock, a student from Rocky Boy, Montana. Standing Rock is enrolled in the UTTC Criminal Justice Program and will complete his degree in less than a year.

Standing Rock spoke about going to school at UTTC and the challenge to adapt to a new place so far away from home. Since the first semester, everything is much better, he said.

The visiting students were very comfortable with Standing Rock as a role model. Bernard deserves a big THANK YOU for helping make it a successful visit!

Student and Campus Services is interested in hosting more student groups. An open invitation is extended to visit and tour the UTTC campus. If you have brothers, sisters, or cousins who you think might be interested in attending UTTC, please give their names and addresses to Vince Schanandore in Enrollment Services.

Back To College

This group of outstanding native high school students from Montana toured the UTTC Campus in mid-October under a program known as Talent Search. The students were from Box Elder, Fort Belknap, Havre, and Rocky Boy. Tours of the campus are open to any group or individual interested in learning about UTTC.

United Tribes Technical College has Several Courses Available Online

by Leah Woodke, Director of Distance & Continuing Education

United Tribes Technical College continues its efforts toward making coursework accessible to anyone who is interested. Spring registration will begin soon. Courses in several fields will be offered, including Early Childhood Education, Injury Prevention, Criminal Justice, and Health Information Technology, as well as General Education courses.

If you are wondering about Online Education at United Tribes Technical College, you may be interested in our first course, "Online Learner Success Strategies" (FOUN 108) offered Spring Semester. Learners in this course will examine ways to have a successful online college experience. Learners develop practical knowledge and skills such as time management, communication, study skills, critical thinking, and effective use of resources. This course is intended for those learners who intend to complete a degree online and not for campus-based learners.

Below is a list of courses available online Spring Semester:

Criminal Justice:

Introduction to Law Enforcement
Criminal Investigation
Community Policing

Early Childhood Education:

Introduction to Early Childhood Education
Field Experience
Language Acquisition
Introduction To Exceptional Education
Guidance Techniques for ECE
Social Environment For Children

Health Information:

Medical Terminology/Transcription & Pharmacology
Intro to Health information Technology
Legal Aspects of HealthCare
Coding I/ICD-9-CM
Quality Improvement
Coding CPT-4 & HCPCS Coding

Injury Prevention:

Introduction to Public Health
Introduction to Program Planning
Introduction to Injury Prevention

General Education:
