The Thunderbirds are awaiting the arrival of Donovan Red Boy who will become eligible next semester to join the team. Donovan will add some much needed fire power and will be a great help on the boards.

We would encourage the staff and students to support the team as much as they can.

Good Luck to the Thunderbirds – may they continue to try their best!

Placement News

Placement services are provided to all UTTC graduates. Although UTTC cannot guarantee employment, every effort is made to place all students into jobs directly related to his/her training. In fulfilling this responsibility the placement staff works closely with the student prior to graduation to determine what types of employment the student is interested in and where the students would like to work.

Upon completion and successful assistance in job placement, the department assists the graduate in securing funds to cover the costs of his/he essential needs, including rent, deposits, food, etc.

Career Development Technician, Shirley Iron Road, will assist students with typing and resume outline.

Placement Officer, Melvin White Eagle is responsible for conducting one on one interview sessions with students. Gathering information from and for students relative to Job Development and Placement.

Jim Davenport, Director of the Placement office at Minot STATE University, says the first thing a student should do once he or she is on campus is visit the Placement Office. "Every campus has one," he says. "While we can't guarantee students a job after graduation, we can help them acquire the skills they'll need to get one."

Davenport emphasizes that placement offices can't help students who don't visit them. "You'd be surprised at the number of students who don't bother us until they are about to graduate," he says. "Although we do everything we can to help them even when they come in late, there is so much we could do to help them before that."

"A misconception needs to be addressed about the role of placement officers," he says. "We don't place students in jobs. Rather, we prepare students for job opportunities by providing resources that will ready them for the interviewing process."

All necessary job development documentations should be in an active file for actual job application and development.

Students who have not completed the required process should do so at this time.

This time period prior to graduation, both the student and career development office will be working directly with potential em-employers and employment agencies. Students should make themselves available for possible job application and actual job interviews.

Career Development materials are available in the Placement Office.

Check the vacancy announcements on display. There may be a job opening just for you. Come and discuss your employment plans with us.

All graduating students are required to complete placement intake and interviews before graduation.

The purpose of the interview will be to make sure that the necessary job development documentations are complete, such as job application forms, resumes, etc.

GRADUATION IS ONLY TWO WEEKS AWAY!
